This talk draws on Māori and Indigenous ideas about the “not so special human being” and ways to live in relation to other entities to talk about decolonising the ways in which the West has come to see, define and know the world.

This lecture kicks off a four-part OPT IDC speaker series.

Register [bit.ly/3BtHiY0]

7:00PM BST